IDENTITY THEFT AND INTERNET SCAMS

Today's technology allows us to connect around the world, to bank and shop online, and to control our televisions, home and cars from our smartphones. With this added convenience comes an increased risk of identity theft and internet scams. In 2020, 47% of people living in the US experienced identity theft.

Common Internet Scams

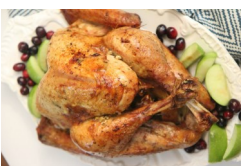

As technology continues to evolve, cybercriminals will use more sophisticated techniques to exploit systems, accounts and devices to steal your identity, personal information, and money. To protect yourself from online threats, you must know what to look for.

- COVID-19 ECONOMIC PAYMENTS SCAMS target Americans' stimulus payments. All Americans should be on the lookout for criminal fraud related to COVID-19 economic impact payments-particularly fraud using coronavirus lures to steal personal and financial information, as well as the economic impact payments themselves-and for adversaries seeking to disrupt payment efforts.
- IMPOSTER SCAMS occur when you receive an email or call from a person claiming to be a government official, family member, or friend requesting personal or financial information. For example an imposter may contact you from the Social Security Administration informing you that your Social Security Number has been suspended, in hopes you will reveal your SSN or pay to have it reactivated.
- DEBT ELIMINATION FRAUD Unlike legitimate companies who work with debtors to help them responsibly repay their debts, debt elimination scammers promise to make you debt free in exchange for a modest upfront or membership fee that they simply pocket. Victims pulled in by these schemes will certainly lose that fee, but they may also lose property, incur additional debt, damage their credit rating, risk identity theft, or face legal action.

PROTECT YOURSELF FROM ONLINE FRAUD

The bottom line is that whenever you're online, you're vulnerable. If devices on your network are compromised for any reason, or if hackers break through an encrypted firewall, someone could be eavesdropping on you-even in your own home on encrypted Wi-Fi.
